Comments: One of the reasons I came to this area was specifically for the raw beauty and feeling of being able to use nature responsibly and therapeutically. I am part of the community and work providing civic duties to those in need. I have never considered leaving until now. Things change and it's understandable but this expansion in relation to "commercializing" for profit changes the beauty of this area negatively. We all know the impact on the environment it will inflict, but something else will be lost. The deep connection we have to this land will forever be changed. The only thing green gained will be cash. I believe who I am begins and ends in these mountains. I can't be the only one who feels this way.
