Comments: I grew up here in Teton Valley, Idaho. I have many fond memories of skiing at Targhee ski resort, as well as exploring Teton Canyon. Unfortunately, Targhee's rising prices have made it impossible for my family and me to enjoy their facilities on any sort of regular basis. Please don't allow the same thing to happen up Teton Canyon. Setting aside my personal feelings of attachment, allowing the expansion of the ski resort would be harmful to the local wildlife and destabilizing to the local economy. The valley floor is experiencing rapid development, making habitat unstable as it. We need spaces that can support plants and animals with a 'leave no trace' attitude from humans. Additionally, Idaho does not have the infrastructure to support the expansion, especially considering our lack of ability to benefit economically from it. I hope you will consider limiting the land available to the ski resort, for the sake of all of us in Idaho.
