Comments: This will not change my access to the forest. The USA has only approved 4 mines in the last 25yrs, most of which took nearly +20yrs of exploration to justify mining said areas.

That said ,in the world of mining ,the USA has only opened up more mines than Somalia in the last 25years.

Let's also remember this area was built on mining, most of the rides are to mines, and it sure as heck took a lot of mining to build your car, truck, sxs, camper , much less everything else you own including the phone you are reading this on. This isn't 1876 and today's mining is a completely different ball game. I completely support mining because everything I use and have in life was brought to me by mining and I refuse to be a hypocrite.

I am pro mining and pro mining jobs.

I would rather have a mine than another Powder House pass on 350acres- at least a mine would bring long term high paying employment with mining jobs for the locals.
