Comments: The Black Hills are sacred, not only to the Indigenous communities who have lived here for generations but also to all who value clean water, thriving ecosystems, and the beauty of the environment. Gold mining threatens our forests, wildlife, and water with irreversible damage. We need to come together to protect this land. Once it's destroyed, we can't get it back. There are better, sustainable ways to support our economy that don't come at the cost of our environment. DO BETTER! PROTECT THE ENVIRONMENT!
