Comments: I am writing today to submit a comment to the Forest Service in opposition to the proposed construction project in Mount Timpanogos. The Forest Service must analyze and adopt an alternative that lets the Mount Timpanogos Wilderness be wild by allowing the metal remnants of the Quonset hut to fade with time or by using wilderness-compatible means to remove it. The remaining rock and cement could be safely dismantled and allowed to fade back into the Wilderness. The claim that it can't be dismantled (or even repaired) using traditional means is false, as the Forest Service built the hut without motorized equipment. There should be no detrimental effect on the landscape, the wildlife or the surrounding sparse human population. To say that something, that was built with the objective of tearing it down at one point in mind, cannot be torn down by traditional means, once again, I say is a fallacy. The Park Service should know better to think they can pull the wool over the people's eyes.
