Comments: The Forest Service must analyze and adopt an alternative that lets the Mount Timpanogos Wilderness be wild by allowing the metal remnants of the Quonset hut to fade with time or by using wilderness-compatible means to remove it. The remaining rock and cement could be safely dismantled and allowed to fade back into the Wilderness. The claim that it can't be dismantled (or even repaired) using traditional means is false, as the Forest Service built the hut without motorized equipment.

It is imperative to not cause any irreversible ecological damage because any disruption to the ecological balance of the Mount Timpanogos Wilderness would not only cause the deaths of multiple species of flora and fauna but also because people enjoy being out in nature where they can hike, breathe clean fresh air and we, as a species, came from nature and cannot survive without it.
