Comments: It is extremely important to maintain the integrity of the Mt. Timpanogos wilderness, as well as that of the US Forest Service. Development of any kind will only lead to more development and the accrued cost of maintenance and funding. We must maintain our own integrity by protecting wilderness preserves, for future generations, from development interests.

With the GPS and locator beacon technologies that we have today, existing emergency response becomes more adequate. Wilderness permits and rangers have the potential to minimize the consequences of ignorance.

Wilderness education is a great investment for the reduction of emergency response.

There is a saying, "The world is loaned to us by future generations." Let us have the respect and integrity to return it intact and unspoiled.
