Comments: I have spent years backpacking in wilderness areas where allowed; all over the USA. Wilderness areas must remain WILD! No structures allowed. No mass hikes allowed. The plans to rebuild a severely damaged structure there is against the wording of that law. It will also waste taxpayers' money. There is no need for it unless, of course, it is only a ruse to stake a mining claim there for something valuable... Is that the reason? It makes no sense, is a waste of money, is highly questionable, and is against regulations. NO, DO NOT REBUILD THE HUT!! These are public lands and owned by the residents of the US and not owned by the Forest Service.
