Comments: Those that pay attention all know that whatever promises a company makes about their activities not permanently negatively impacting the environment are thrown out the window the minute their project is approved. After that any decision to minimize impacts on the environment or remediate are secondary to making a profit. And the bond that is required is never sufficient to deal with the damages left behind when the company isn't making a profit and they move on. This is our system and we are dying from it. To the public servants reading these comments: you can make a difference. Please do all that you can to stop the destruction of our environment so some soulless company can make a profit.
