Comments: Pu-lease! If it were an atomic bomb, the powers that be would claim, "no significant impact"! It IS an atomic bomb to WILDLIFE. Humans have always underestimated their own environmental impacts, so filled with eagerness for the commerce to begin. Just the fact that helicopters, trucks, human smells, and a disruption of feeding grounds and access, seems to be plenty of reason, NOT to despoil this relatively pristine area of wilderness. How often has our haste to build, and foment ANYTHING that would seem to benefit ourselves- and if designs of commerce become part of the picture... We're in the same leaky boat that we find ourselves in, when we put ourselves before our environment.
