Comments: The proposed project will do damage to the environment that is all out of proportion to the benefits of restoring a questionable structure. The proposed activities will damage a fragile ecosystem in an area that is supposed to remain pristine. Restoring the shelter flies in the face of all management goals for a wilderness site. Better let the shelter deteriorate than inflict permanent damage to the environment.

The agency should pursue the "no action" option.

If you have funds for this project, you should re-direct those funds to re-hiring fired personnel and supporting protecting the wilderness area..
