Comments: My only concern with this project is that the installation of the power line through the Dowd Junction area does not occur in late autumn / early winter (October - December). At that time, hundreds of deer and elk migrate through Dowd Junction, specifically down the slope and along the railroad tracks across the river from the USFS Ranger Station, and then under the big green I-70 bridge. This is a very critical and narrow migration path that should not be disturbed at that time of year.
