Comments: I write this as a 52 year resident of Lander, Wyoming. I would like to see the most conservative of plans for the BT so that little extractive plase are intituted. One aspect that is really significant is the karst in the BT and some of the most significant caves and potential for further discovery of caves warrents maximum conservation of the BT. Not only do caves hold biologic and cultural resources, but also all disciplines of science can be pursued in cave research. They are also intimate to the water table and in Wyoming water is paramount.
