Comments: Please, leave the forests of the White Mountains alone!!

Logging not only destroys trees but the homes of many of the wildlife in those areas, plus, eroding the soil around those forests.

It is a primary driver of deforestation, leading to habitat loss, increases surface runoff which raises flood risk and degrades water quality by raising stream temperatures and ph levels. Also, the construction of logging roads facilitates the spread of invasive species and diseases, further degrading forest ecosystems.

Think of how many years it takes for trees to grow to maturity.

Logging not only destroys the present ecosystem but the future ecosystem.
