Comments: To whom it may concern,

I'm writing as an extremely concerned tax paying citizen, taxes of which pay for United States Forest Service Agency to exist, and pay the wages of the highly unprofessional agents in charge of this effort to launch a plan revision.

Besides the many issues with the legalities of this entire process from the beginning, of which I know there are many folks who can speak to those illegalities better than I. However, I will speak to the fundamentals of this entire effort, and will call a spade a spade. This is a scam being run on not only the ranchers who have these allotments, but on the American People at large.

I am appalled at the nature of behavior of the agents involved in the meeting I attended September 16th with USFS agents heading this effort. Not the local agents, the "high ups". They downtalked the very people they are supposed to serve, they refused to answer questions, they let it be known that their BOSS (Secretary of Agriculture Rollins) was not informed of what they're doing, and their motives became quite clear.

Turning this roughly half a million acres into a "wilderness preserve" will be catastrophic for our economy, both at large in America, and locally. There are endangered species on the list that aren't even PRESENTS ON THE GRASSLANDS. Furthermore, the very people in charge of this effort have never actually had to work in the reality of the environment in which we live. They operate on "classroom theory," not "applied reality". They have no clue what it means to truly care for the land, and all that dwells in it. The United States Forest Service was not intended to be weaponized against its own people by extremist environmentalists!

These environmentalists dream of an environment where man does not exist in the environment. However, these kinds of environmentalists believe they get to exist in the environment because "they know better". They get to be the "kings" lording over the rest of us.

It is evident, based on the words and actions of the agents in the meeting on 9/16, that they don't care if this administration (to whom they answer to) knows what they're doing, and thus are pleased to ram it through in with as few eyes on this effort as possible.

They also pretended like they didn't have access to every permittee's contact info and that's why they couldn't invite or alert them into this process in the beginning. That's absurd. You mean to tell me that any time a rancher goes into FSA or NRCS and their contact info is put into the system, that doesn't happen in the forest service? They don't know how to get ahold of the people who run on "their land"? That's laughable and so clearly biased to what they want to achieve. This whole revision draft is clearly one sided and not for anyone's interest or benefit except the USFS and the environmentalists who want to turn this land into a wilderness. How ironic that the Southern Plains Land Trust just bought up an old ranch near these grasslands? Wow. What a coincidence.

Grasslands are not to be made into wilderness preserves, and all USFS land, BY LAW, unless otherwise designated by Congress are to be managed according to multiple use and sustained yield principles. Turning the grasslands into a wilderness would violate that, and thus, is more evidence to the fact that these agents (perhaps agency) is running rogue under the current administration.

At minimum this plan needs to be stopped, and there is no standing to turn the grasslands into a wilderness and therefore this entire effort needs to be blocked from ever being able to be brought in the future.

Thank you,

Clare Dunn
