Comments: I would like to comment on the Whitetail-State creek Project #68735. It is well past time that a total forest management approach be used as compared to giving emphasis to only some parts of the complete picture. I have reviewed the components of the proposals and the objectives that would be worked towards and agree there is a need for each of these. Looking at the entire picture will produce better results. The days of challenging legally one component which is very hard to quantify and stopping the entire project should be over. The Forest Service is the expert body which manages public land and should vigorously defend against lawsuits that have no merit.
