Comments: For the record, I do not believe in anything being done to old forests. Restoration does not compute to me. These trees have survived since before we were born and will continue to do so if left alone. The benefits they offer our environment (and us) are far greater than any dollar amount you have on them.

I cannot fathom this effort. What in the world has happened with decision processes that allow for old growth to be destroyed. Soon there will be no more and your decisions will have weighed heavily on their demise. I for one could never approve such measures and I ask you to please, for the love of whatever you deem important in your life, to save these trees. Find another way to satisfy the insatiable appetite of the timber industry.

Thank you for letting me express my feelings on this matter.
