Comments: I hope for climbing management policy in Ten Sleep Canyon in which:

- * climbing is recognized as a valid activity on USFS land;

- * there is no ban on new route development;

- * there are no limitations on new route development based on an opinion that a specific area already has enough routes (because new route possibilities in areas described as having high visitation do, in fact, exist);

- * that allows new route development in undeveloped or sparsely developed areas, in order to ease visitation on busy areas;

- * that allows for the restoration of safety equipment (bolts and anchor equipment) as needed, by climbers themselves.
