Comments: This project must not go ahead at its current speed. The public needs more transparency about what is happening in and to our cherished forests. As it stands, there is not enough evidence to support the drastic cutting, widespread burning, and use of unsafe herbicides like glyphosate on this land. The impacts of these actions may be severe, lasting for generations, and those impacts have not been thoroughly researched. Until the public has more detail available as to what is planned, this project must be slowed down and submitted for appropriate scientific review.
