Comments: It is insane to think that an agency that is supposed to protect outdoor spaces, national parks, and old-growth trees is even considering harvesting 5,000 acres of Tongass National Forest, 4,000 acres is old-growth.

This threatens to destroy world-class salmon streams and carve up critical wildlife habitat for deer, bear, elk and other animals, while taking the axe to one of our most important buffers against climate change.

Monique Nelson, you specifically, are an embarrassment to the Forest Service, and you should be fired without pension or any benefits.
