Comments: I vigorously oppose any further opening of the Tongass National Forest to logging. I am especially opposed to the opening of old-growth regions to harvesting.

As has been identified in the past, our forests are essential to supporting our salmon stocks and fishing industry.

Everyone who lives in Alaska lives here for the environment's ability to sustain us. Fishing, hunting, and foraging offset the high cost of living.

A threat to the environment is a threat to our way of life. Logging is an unacceptable risk to our community's survival.
