Comments: Hello administrators.

How about you stop exploiting the natural resources that are left in this country and let them recover? There is ample scientific data published already about the benefits of trees and old growth forest growing in the ground, giving us clean air to breathe. Stop ignoring the science and trying to walk back on it or pretend it never existed. You may be thinking the American people are idiots who aren't aware of the obvious cause and effect relationship between fossil fuel use and climate change, but most of us are smart enough to know, and we know that deforestation accelerates the problems we are already having.
