Comments: Indigenous people, especially the Oceti Sakowin, have the freedom to protect and practice their religion. The protection of sacred sites is imperative to allowing the freedom of religious expression. The protection of sacred sites is congruent to protection of community health, clean water (which is a human right), and safe and diverse ecosystems-- all of which will be negatively impacted by uranium drilling hosted by CNEC. As a resident of South Dakota, I do not support the overtaking of indigenous land nor the destruction that will be caused by uranium drilling.
