Comments: I'm writing to express my opposition to increased logging in the Malheur National forest. The Trump administration has shown an utter lack of appreciation for the stewardship of and appreciation of our public lands as anything other than resources to be exhausted by private interests in pursuit of profit. These public lands are a national treasure and bring in millions of people from all over the US and the world and are carefully managed, or were, before drastic cuts to federal programs and dedicated federal employees. Our National parks and public lands bring in millions of dollars to the local economies.

The Malheur Nat'l Forest is home to the largest single organism on earth, a 2,400 acre fungus. Opening it up to increased logging and mining is a direct threat to the survival of this and other ecosystems throughout the forest. It's an assault and a crime against nature and the American people.
