Comments: Please don't log old growth forests. The forests belong to everyone. We need them to sequester carbon. Animals need habitats. We need clean drinking water. This timber sale also overlaps with the "humongous fungus" considered the largest living organism on earth. Logging damages sensitive fungal networks. The forest service is openly targeting the largest trees and mature/old growth forests left in our national forests. Once these trees are gone, they're gone forever. Please let them be. This would be large-scale and ecologically destructive logging. Please don't do it.
