Comments: This is a well thought out and documented project. The southern end of the Wakulla District is definitely in need of treatments to sustain this fire adapted ecosystem. I support these treatments and will be visiting them on the ground in the future. Competition from Titi, gallberry, fetter bush, and other brush species will be strong in this part of the forest. While many people are against the use of herbicides on vegetation I am in favor of it in this area of the forest. Good Luck!
