Comments: Our poor, poor planet is much too close to her tipping point for us to be enacting policies that will only serve to push her over the edge. We need to preserve whatever precious little pristine wilderness remaining and re-wild much of that stolen from the animal nations.

We are in the midst of the Sixth Mass Extinction and losing species at an unprecedented rate. The survivors, and the places they call home, need full protection so they can live and raise their families. The environment is already drenched with chemicals of all kinds and microplastics are ubiquitous. Any "treatments" to reduce "hazardous fuels" should be limited to hand tools with minimal disruption to the resident animals' home.
