Comments: I am opposed to the proposed logging project at Chalk Buttes in the Custer Gallatin National Forest. The clear-cutting of Old-Growth forest, prescribed burning, and building of roads over thousands of acres will fragment habitat and will endanger grizzly bears, Canadian Lynx and other wildlife populations. Roadbuilding and logging could increase wildfire risk, expand access for poaching, and threaten fragile watersheds that support bull trout and cutthroat trout. This doesn't seem to have the best interests of the Forest, the environment, or the wildlife at its core or at least in its likely negative impacts. Is the real purpose of this logging perhaps to profit some lumber company/companies?
