Comments: I believe that the permitting of this body of water would be a slap in the face to the local population who recreate on the river. Many of my friends, my family , and I commonly float and fish ,several days a week, as one of the few cheap things we can do. After paying for licenses and other permits already needed to even go recreate on the three river system. Granted, the permits would be "free" to begin with, but that would just be the foot in the door to start charging, closing section down to the public in lieu of the businesses and special interest groups. The population has definitely grown in our area for sure but if only small sections are open to "free" float then those sections are just going to be even more overcrowded. If the day comes that I can't freely float the three rivers as I have done my whole life, I believe that will be just another bit of recreation lost to the privation and closing of our outdoors.
