Comments: I support the Big Cottonwood Canyon Watershed Restoration Project. As a frequent trail user, I have seen the impacts of erosion, habitat degradation, and increasing recreation pressure in the canyon. This project takes a thoughtful approach to improving watershed health, reducing wildfire risk, restoring native vegetation, and protecting the long-term resilience of this important landscape.

Big Cottonwood Canyon is both a critical watershed and a treasured recreation area. Investing in restoration now will help preserve clean water, healthy ecosystems, and sustainable access for future generations. I encourage the Forest Service to move forward with the proposed project.
