Comments: Dear Forest Service - This is one of the worst ideas Ive heard proposed in the Wasatch Front, particularly in our beloved Big Cottonwood Canyon. Not only is this a watershed for our valley but it house many cabins, a thriving community, and wildlife we may never see replaced. The proposed burning of trees under a controlled burn is ridiculous, firstly because the wind blows up the canyon every night and down the canyon every morning. With more trees gone after the burn, these winds will become stronger, enabling any fire intentional or not, to ravage what little forest we have left from the plight of pine beetles in the Rocky's. Please Do Not do this burning of our forest and trees. It's been so hard replenishing them after several drought related disasters. We love our canyons, making them more vulnerable to devastation is foolish and will cause suffering to the people of Salt Lake valley.
