Comments: I object to the Roby Management Project. This project, as well as several others, are delivered under the guise of "management" when in fact they the sale of a forest purely as a product. This is everything but true management, and anyone at the forest service who actually serves the forest will know this is true. There are far better methods or management than heavy logging, but that would require diligence and openness from those being paid to serve the forest. I hold hope that whoever reads this letter will at least acknowledge these truths. Thank you.
