Comments: My father worked his entire life to put food on the table for me and my siblings. He was fortunate enough to purchase a beautiful piece of property on Snowshoe Creek Road once he retired, deciding to spend his twilight years on some of the most beautiful land in all of Montana. Me, my siblings, my children, and my nieces and nephews have grown up enjoying the beauty of this land. This mine is an abhorrent idea considering the complete lack of environmental awareness proceeding the start of operation. The US Forest Service & the State of Montana should never let this happen. Should this affront to God & Nature be allowed, I sincerely pray the corporate overlords orchestrating this environmental disaster waiting to happen are served drinking water from the creeks they are sure to contaminate, and eat plates of beef from the emaciated herds of cattle affected by their mine. I'd ask a full EIS be performed before any industrial mining operation starts. Numerous animals, some of them critically endangered, who rely on this pristine environment are sure to be affected, yet nothing has been stated in the EA how the mining company plans to safeguard them during or after their ground extrusion.
