Comments: The last of our wild and roadless lands are precious. What remains of these areas in Northwest Colorado are importantly for our local economy and ecology. Opening these areas up to drilling is an example of the shortsightedness of the current administration. Please do not open Routt National Forest to private drilling operations. The effects will be devastating to our local wildlife and further help to erode the pride that may family and I have in this great nation that once held on to the value of preserving wild places for the sake of future generations.
