Comments: We need active forest management to reduce fuel loads, reduce summer wild fires, to increase browse for elk, and to spur rural economies. We also need travel management on those logging roads so elk are not pushed off public land, creating conflict with adjoining private property owners, as well as reducing public opportunity to hunt those elk because they are no longer on public land when road density is too high. There is good science on acceptable open-road densities that will keep elk on the public land. Follow the science. Increase forest management and implement road closures once the logging is done.
