Comments: The Black Hills National Forest matters to me. I live in Wyoming and am a former rock climber and hiker who used to visit Devils Tower to camp and recreate and reconnect with nature. Devils Tower is one of our most cherished monuments and is a sacred place to the local indigenous cultures. What matters most: it's shameful to even consider a project like this. Devils Tower is stunning and brings half a million tourists a year to WY. Mining will irradiate the soil and spoil the natural habitat, making it ugly and dangerous. If this plan happens, one of our finest monuments will have been desecrated. So many places in our country have been destroyed by greed and carelessness. Don't let Devils Tower be one of them.
