Comments: Thank you for the opportunity to comment. While I support wildfire mitigation efforts, such as selective thinning, creating open areas between stands, and proscribed burning of vegetation, I have no faith that the current administration acts in good faith using sound scientific and conservation values. I am aware that the Trump administration has been actively using executive authority to modify the implementation of the Infrastructure Investment and Jobs Act (IIJA) in ways that bypass normal reviews and face heavy legal challenges. Rather than using the IIJA itself as a tool to circumvent rules, the administration is aggressively reshaping how the law's remaining funds are spent, utilizing deregulation, funding freezes, and new land-use policies to speed up development and bypass traditional oversight. So I do not support this project if it means clear cutting the entire area, building roads in sensitive area, taking larger diameter trees that are typically more fire resistant, invreasing fire prone noxious weeds and basically destroying habitat.
