Comments: Vegetation treatments are important for maintaining forested areas. Insects and fungi can quickly take over if plants and trees are not pre-treated. The spring of 2026 brought new varieties of insects to my residential landscaping in Texas, and it was a battle to determine what they were and what would extinguish them. A segment of my family has been in the landscaping business for three generations. Multiply my small property by the magnitude of Yellowstone and the responsibility for caretaking becomes overwhelming. Please do what you can to preserve Yellowstone for future generations.
