Comments: I understand the hazardous fuels where wildlife is concerned, but if this in regards to the pine beetles, they are very destructive and have ruined trees in our area to the point of being a hazard to forests and homes with pines in their neighbors.

That is my only comment and I don't know enough about the chemicals and ability of the persons or person doing the work, the method applied and what animals can be harmed. I would not be in favor of a blank right to fly the chemicals to apply in the area. I pray no animals will be directly or indirectly harmed by the hazardous chemicals being sprayed on them or to vegetation they may come in contact with through touching the chemicals or by consuming the chemicals. Sincerely, Judy W Poole
