Comments: Snowmobiling has been a great family sport for us in the winter. Our children have enjoyed not only quality time with their parents, but also a huge, fun, quantity of time! With all of the new technological advances, snowmobiles are now able to venture into more areas of our beloved winter wild lands than ever before! Future advances will make similar accessibility advancements in the future also, so we need to keep our wild lands as open as possible to traditional and increased future snowmobile use. As you can see each spring, all evidence of the snowmobile use melts away. Snowmobiles do no harm to the landscape or to the non-present wildlife that has migrated to lower and warmer climates. Please work to keep all possible areas to snowmobile use. And, please work to re-open wilderness areas that have been previously closed, even though there was a historical tradition of motorized winter use in the areas."
