Re: Eagle River Restoration Project

Great news about the U.S. Forest Service's plans to restore headwaters of the Eagle River. Kudos to all involved for their cooperative work and preparation.

There is one native but now absent species not mentioned: one who hunted elk, taking the weak and sick and thereby strengthening the herd; controlling elk numbers and maintaining a balance in the ecosystem: the wolf.

Perhaps someday soon we will be making cooperative efforts to restore him.

Thank you,
