

Data Submitted (UTC 11): 8/6/2015 4:08:04 AM

First name: Anon

Last name: ZB

Organization:

Title:

Comments: Forrest plan and Wilderness inventory public comment

I hike, bike and run the trails in the local area. Of those biking is the most important to me and my family. In a city such as Albuquerque, biking is one of the top activities behind the city's consistently high ranking when it comes to the outdoors and livability. We need to develop biking in our open spaces and forest lands, not squash it. Many of our national parks are already having the conversation about developing biking trails. Also our top state officials point to tourism as one of New Mexico's top economic drivers. We need to look to states like Colorado and Utah, which have both capitalized on biking tourism and as a lifestyle characteristic for their residents. It would be a shame to take a step backward here in New Mexico by limiting cycling in our public, multi-use areas.

Zach Bryan

Rio Rancho NM