

As an Idaho native, resident and mining professional who has been involved in mining globally. I have done significant due diligence on Stibnite to make sure my cherished Idaho back yard and recreational back packing and exploring areas are preserved. With minimal research, you will see the Midas leadership has a long track record of understanding and managing low disturbance mining operations from unconventional resources development. These efforts include regulatory compliance, voluntary actions, and research conducted with academic institutions, non-governmental organizations, and government agencies.

It is critical we all support the Midas management with their plans for Stibnite mainly because you don't get these opportunities often to have mining done right. This project will truly show the world that Idaho is the industry leader with responsible mining.

Sincerely,

Alex Deeds
