

I am in complete support of the Stibnite Gold Project. The reasons I am: Perpetua has started off on a good foot of cleaning up the old mine site, they did tons of community outreach with the intent of making it a community based operation. The mine will bring jobs "back" to the local area and the United States. Lots of people talk about "not in my back yard," and I think "why not in my backyard?"

It provide jobs for locals; helps promote the county, state and US in its drive to keep it local.

I'd rather have mined materials coming from the United States then overseas where regulations are not as strict and job opportunities are lost to foreign countries.
