

This mine should not be approved until the federal government issues a national security versus environmental impact analysis. It is clear the environmental impacts and risks are severe. The owners admit they can not fully mitigate the impact or assure and defend against a spill or leak. It's the minerals that critical to our national security. I say they are not until the federal government deems otherwise.

Simon Malk