Comments: The forest service is the largest landowner in the upper swan valley, therefor the responsible party for the protection and utilization of our natural resources. When the next big wildfire goes through this valley it should at the fault of the environmental groups litigating these timber sales and hamstringing the forest service in doing there job but for some reason these groups are not held accountable, it will be the forest service. We need more of this work being done on the landscape but now with the loss of another mill it will make the projects even less attractive to local contractors, giving these environmental groups even more leverage to stop the work, they need to be held accountable and we need more work accomplished.
